The Vedic Vision of Mother-Earth: An Introduction

In the vision of the Vedas, Goddess (Mother-Earth) is not an inert object to be thoughtlessly plundered and defiled. She is alive; a vibrant, infinitely compassionate Goddess, who is this sacred planet. She manifests as all forms of wealth, fortune, prosperity and nourishment (She as the material-cause of the universe, who is never separate from the infinite-knowledge-cause). She is known as Gaia in Greek mythology, but in the Vedic vision, her attributes are much more complex and profound.

This entire universe, including one's body-sense-mind complex, is within 'awareness', just as 'wave' is within 'water'. 'Wave' is 'water', but 'wave' is simply an incidental attribute, borrowing existence from 'water'. What we call subtle material (the mind or intellect) and gross material (the physical body) are mutually dependent upon each other. Yet, both have their reality in, and are dependent upon borrowed existence. Mind, body and all other material objects within awareness are fundamentally inert and only seem sentient due to this borrowed existence. That which lends existence to all material is 'Consciousness': The-independent self-evident-limitless un-negate-able-being non-concept 'I', which can only be the implied meaning of the word 'You'. You (as witness to the presence and absence of thought) are quality-less existence-awareness.

Every name, form and function is (as-though) brought to life by Consciousness as infinite-intelligent-order (including disorder); from the Higgs Boson to super-massive black holes; from bacterium to the blue whale; from microcosm to macrocosm; all is one, conscious being. There is neither one Goddess nor many goddesses; there is only Goddess! Nothing may be taken for granted; the air we breathe, the waters we bathe in, our sun which we worship, without which, life itself would cease to exist.

Nivedanam is the acknowledgment of gratitude for all the-infinite-given by Goddess, including one's body-sense-mind complex. We recognize this gift and respond with gratitude, devotion and humility, giving back to Her with all our hearts; mirroring the way She unconditionally gives to us. In Sanskrit, this 'giving-back' to Goddess is called yajña (a sacred sacrifice). To make this attitude of selfless giving an abiding one, we employ words and actions which state explicitly that 'I don't take these given elements/life-giving gifts for granted'; that 'I am deeply grateful for the-infinite-given'.

यज्ञो वै विष्णुः

The entire cosmos is nothing but one, infinite yajña, a sacred sacrifice; actions as material offerings, sacrificed to the-infinite-giver. The ultimate sacrifice is the giving up of one's ignorance; the notions of 'I'-ness and 'My'-ness, burnt clean in the crucible of Vedānta through the 'attainment' of Self-knowledge. The realization being that you are Goddess, and Goddess alone is.

The Vedas contain countless prayers addressing all the elements, elementals and material phenomenon (as conscious beings and non-separate from awareness). These prayers are steeped in reverence and deep-gratitude for the-infinite-given. They also include many needed reminders to humans regarding a common-sense approach to all of existence, coupled with responsible actions; making sure that what is taken from Nature is given back. For example, it is suggested that one plant ten 'trees' for every one that is felled. In this way, the odds are increased for more 'trees' to attain maturity.

The following mantras and prayers are windows into this profound vision and spirit which echo in myriad ways among the four Vedas. These three Vedic and two Purāṇic poem-prayers are very difficult to translate into English; not only because the Sanskrit language is radically different from our own, but also because the sage's vision is holistic in nature, taking into account the entire Vedic cultural context.

A Mantra from the Mahānārāyaṇa Upaniṣad (Kṛṣṇa Yajur Veda)

aśvagrānte rathagrānte viṣṇugrānte vasundharā śirasā dhārayiṣyāmi rakṣasva mām pade pade (37)

अश्वक्रान्ते रथक्रान्ते विष्णुक्रान्ते वसुन्धरा ।

शिरसा धारयिष्यामि रक्षस्व मां पदे पदे ॥ ३७ ॥

Oh, Goddess-Earth, sustainer of all life; you silently support all majestic, striding horses and chariots (all moving sentient beings and insentient vehicles) across a vast labyrinth of paths; (ever-secure in your support; never feeling the weight; ever-patient, ever-compassionate. I prayerfully walk with gratitude upon your sacred back, stepping lightly and with care). As I walk I will stop and prostrate myself, placing my head upon your wondrous body. Then, with each continuing step, a prayer arises in my heart:
Oh, Goddess, protect me! Oh, Goddess, protect me!

Lakṣmī Gāyatrī Mantraḥ

om mahālakṣmyai ca vidmahe
viṣṇu patnyai ca dhīmahi
tanno lakṣmīḥ pracodyāt

ॐ महालक्ष्म्यै च विद्महे

विष्णु पत्न्यै च धीमहि

तन्नो लक्ष्मीः प्रचोदयात् ॥

We invoke in our hearts and meditate upon the limitless, selfeffulgent Goddess; the sacred consort of Viṣṇu, who manifests as the all-pervasive sustainer. May Goddess Lakṣmī; She of limitless grace, fortune and ultimate nourishment; She of self-knowledge;
may She inspire our every thought, word and action.

A Verse From the Śrī Sūktam Stotram

(Rg Veda)

om padmapriye padmini padmahaste padmālaye padmadalāyatākṣi viśvapriye viṣṇumanonukūle tvatpādapadamam mayi sannidatsva (28)

ॐ पद्मप्रिये पद्मिनि पद्महस्ते पद्मालये

पद्मदलायताक्षि । विश्वप्रिये विष्णुमनोऽनुकूले

त्वत्पादपद्मं मयि सन्निदत्स्व ॥ २८ ॥

Oh, (Lakṣmī Devī) blooming-lotus-love; (standing) is lotus-wisdom lake; lotus in your hands; alighting on lotus, so lightly-stands; lotuslike; eyes gracious-grand; universal-love commands; lotus-heart conjoined with Viṣṇu-lingam; fully embracing her lord She so adores.
Your sacred-lotus feet adorn my heart; you, so free;
reverential-being I-adore.

A Verse From the Mahālakṣmī Aṣṭakam

(Padma Purāṇa)

padmāsanasthite devī parabrahma svarūpiṇī
parameśi jaganmātarmahālakṣmī namostu te (7)

पद्मासनस्थिते देवी परब्रह्म स्वरूपिणी ।

परमेशि जगन्मातर्महालक्ष्मी नमोऽस्तु ते ॥ ७ ॥

Oh, devī; effulgent Goddess Lakṣmī, reposing in auspicious-lotus-pink-pure; in lotus-pose reposed allure; your limitless-feminine-essence endures; most exalted-Goddess-being pure; sacred mother of the world demure; bowing down in reverence, my trust (as a helpless babe) so full-complete; in refuge clasping lotus feet.

A Verse From the Devīsūktam (Mārkaṇḍeya Purāṇa)

yā devī sarvabhūteṣu lakṣmīrūpeṇasamsthitā
namastasyai namastasyai namastasyai namo namaḥ (20)

या देवी सर्वभूतेषु लक्ष्मीरूपेणसंस्थिता ।

नमस्तस्यै नमस्तस्यै नमस्तस्यै नमो नमः ॥ २० ॥

Unto self-effulgent-limitless-Goddess who (as material-cause) is inand-through the entire universe; who manifests as all forms of grace; who is wealth-sustenance-nourishment;
salutations to Her; salutations to Her again and again;
in every heartbeat, my salutations to Her.

श्री स्वामी वागीशानन्द सरस्वती

Śrī Svāmī Vāgīśānanda Sarasvatī

Śrī Svāmī Vāgīśānanda Sarasvatī is a senior disciple of Pūjya Śrī Svāmī Dayānanda Sarasvatī, and has been studying and teaching Vedānta since 1975.

Svāmī jī was in his teens when he became fascinated with mystical poetry and non-dualistic philosophies. In 1975, at the age of 19, he left his home in the United States and traveled to India to study in a traditional gurūkulam. After graduating from a three-year residential course in Vedānta and Sanskrit, he attended four subsequent three-year courses in the United States and in India.

Using the traditional methodology called sampradāya, Svāmī Vāgīśānanda 'unlocks' the scriptures of Vedānta, thereby removing the veil of ignorance; the cause of all human suffering. He is a traditional samnyāsi (a renunciant who is committed to a life of knowledge and has taken a vow of non-injury). A master of the South Indian Kṛṣṇa Yajur Veda style of chanting, Svāmī jī has traveled the world teaching Sanskrit, Vedic chanting and Vedānta.
